TROOP 175 IN SIMSBURY IS LOOKING FOR A FEW GOOD BOYS

Boy Scout Troop 175 is looking for boys with a sense of adventure and fun to join us. Our Troop is sponsored by St. Mary's Church in Simsbury and meets on Thursday nights from 7-8:30 PM. Boys of all faiths are welcome.

Monthly Trips That Test Our Skills

In the best traditions of Scouting, we are an adventurous Troop with an emphasis on the basic skills of Scouting and putting those skills to test every month on challenging trips. We are an "All Weather" Troop. We have been camping and biking on Block Island; Bobsledding with the US Olympic team in Lake Placid (camping in snow caves that night), learned to scuba dive in Massachusetts and explored survival camping at our annual "Deep Freeze" survival shelter trip. The Troop has also gone skiing in Vermont, climbing, skiing, and boarding in Tuckerman's Ravine on Mt. Washington, climbed two different mountains in the Adirondacks, canoed in Maine and did a five day trip to Algonquin National Park in Canada where we canoed and camped in the Canadian wilderness. In 2010/2011 we have added more trips to our program

2010/2011 Trips – the Challenges (and fun) Continue

- September - Camping trip to Hammonasset State Park. Iron Chef Cooking Competition
- October – 2 day Bicycle trip on Block Island.
- November - Annual Webelos Challenge on our "home" turf, Onion Mountain in West Simsbury. This is a great event where Cubs are invited for a full day of Scout activities and to work with our Scout patrols on making rope bridges, furniture, campfires, orienteering and zip lines. In the evening, the patrols will cook a meal with the Cubs followed by a Troop campfire with songs and skits put on by the Scouts. Cubs are invited to spend the night camping (with a parent)
- December - We will do a winter orienteering course and some backcountry skiing and camping.
- January - Operation "Deep Freeze", where scouts will build survival shelters and learn cold weather camping.
- February - Our annual ski and snowboard trip to Vermont.
1 Week sailing trip in the Caribbean.
- March – This is our cross-over trip for Webelos joining our troop and we'll be doing the Boston Freedom Trail. We'll be camping 2 nights near Boston. Dads/Moms invited – as always.
- April - Once again we will go to Tuckerman's Ravine on Mt. Washington in the White Mountains. This is one of our most popular trips.
- May - We will climb Mt. Greylock in MA.
- June - 5th Annual Boy Scout Adventure Race. This race was developed by Troop 175 and involves biking, running, canoeing, rappelling, orienteering and climbing in Simsbury in a 16 mile, 4 hour race. The other two Simsbury Scout Troops join us. Boys Life Magazine published a full picture, 6 page article of the race in April 2010, featuring Troop 175.

After school ends, we'll take a four day canoe trip in Maine. This is a mini expedition trip as we will carry everything we need with us.

An Emphasis on Leadership Training

Every spring, we hold our annual Junior Leader Training Program for the older Scouts (First Class & above) based on the US Army Ranger program called "No Excuses Leadership". We hold the program in March in the White Mountains at one of the huts maintained by the Appalachian Mountain Club. It's a challenging but fun weekend. We snow shoe in deep snow into the mountains with full packs. There we practice our Scout rescue skills in the snow, engage in team missions, and discuss the leadership styles of many of the great explorers. This year we will return again to the White Mountains in March and continue our leadership training at Lonesome Lake Hut.

Immortals - The Best of the Best

As an outgrowth of our Junior Leadership Training Program, we developed something special for Scouts who want to push harder and discover new capabilities. They are known as the "Immortals" and are our most advanced Scouts, who have learned and developed extensive survival and wilderness skills taught by our adult leaders. They wear special patches on their uniforms, are given black Machetes at their induction into the group and participate in extreme outings. Their motto is: "to Learn, to Teach, to Serve, and to Lead". They operate without tents, choosing on every trip to build shelters, and they never start a fire with matches, using only flint and steel. They move very quickly through the woods, and improvise almost everything they need from their surroundings .

We were proud when our group of "Immortals" was invited to visit the US Army Mountain Warfare School by its Commander, and to train with the Special Operation Groups that were learning winter mountaineering and avalanche skills.

We constantly work to invent new challenges to test their skills and maximize what they can learn from difficult situations. Last year, we blindfolded the group and drove them 3 hours into the Vermont countryside where they were dropped off on the backside of a mountain in a rainstorm with no maps, no radios, no GPS, no tents, some food, water, and instructions to find the largest lake in the area (about 4 miles away, but they didn't know that). The goal was for the scouts to get a water sample and return it to the drop off in 48 hours. At the next Troop meeting, we presented the same challenge to the younger scouts and asked how they would accomplish this challenge. By the way, like in all of our Scout programs, adults were present at all times for safety.

This Spring, the Immortals took on a new challenge - they hiked the entire White Mountain Presidential Range – 9 peaks , 8,500 vertical feet, 19 miles - all in 13 hours.

The Ultimate Adventure – International Expedition Trips

Each summer, Troop 175 provides an opportunity for its most experienced Scouts to go on an International/Domestic Expedition Trip.

Kilimanjaro - In 2007, nine of our Scouts and their parents traveled to Africa to climb Kilimanjaro. A trip in the planning for over two years, it was an extraordinary adventure. We spent five days climbing the largest freestanding volcano mountain in the world. In the process, we went through five climatic zones. Our group of 24 had 76 Tanzanian support Staff as everything has to be carried up the mountain. Our Tanzanian Guides were the best on the mountain and each two-climber team had a guide. On day six we started our final assault at midnight from 15,500 feet, climbing up the crater wall. The temperature was 15 degrees; the oxygen level less than half at sea level. We climbed for six hours with four, five-minute breaks. The crater wall was steep and in the dark under a full moon the group slowly moved to the summit. At 6 am we reached the first summit at Gillman's Point. Water bottles were frozen, and fingers and toes had lost most feeling, but after a brief regroup it was on another two hours around the crater to the final summit at Uhuru

Peak at 19,341 - the rooftop of Africa. Our group took a round of pictures and then went back down the crater wall and eventually down to 12,000 feet by 5 PM that afternoon. Everyone agreed that it was the longest – but most memorable day – of their life. We are targeting to return in 2012.

Amazon Jungle – In 2008, we took eleven of our Scouts and Leaders deep into the Amazon Jungle. We flew to Lima, Peru and then into Iquitos, a city on the Amazon River that is the largest city in the world that is inaccessible by road. After a journey up the river of 110 miles we went through jungle training for 3 days with local Indian guides and then departed with a full expedition into a part of the Amazon that had rarely seen humans. Under the auspices of Dr. Paul Beaver and the Amazon Research Center, we observed and cataloged rare species of monkeys. Along the way we had to deal with tarantulas, poisonous snakes, deep mud, wild boars and incessant rain. It was an extraordinary experience.

Philmont Scout Ranch – In 2009, 9 scouts and 3 adults from Troop 175 traveled to Cimarron New Mexico for an unforgettable 2 week backpacking adventure in the Sangre De Cristo mountain range. Philmont was donated to the Boy Scouts in 1947 consisting of 220 square miles of high altitude terrain.

Our crew hiked approximately 65 miles carrying fully loaded backs enabling us to be self sufficient for our 2 week stay. We climbed one of the highest peaks, Mount Phillips at elevation 11,711'. Later that afternoon we cooked our dinner while watching the sunset behind the valley below.

Philmont is a wonderful experience not only for the outdoor adventure but also for the wilderness and leadership skills each scout mastered along the way.

North to Alaska – This past summer we took 38 members of our troop for a two week adventure in Alaska. We rented 8 RV vehicles to act as mobile bases and climbed in the Wrangell St Elias range, (home to some of the tallest mountains in the world), fished in the Kenai for Salmon and Halibut and went Whitewater Rafting in one of the toughest rivers in the world with all Class 4 and Class 5 Whitewater. We went kayaking in Glacier Bay with the otter and seals, followed the gold rush route down the Yukon River to Dawson City and spent many a night in the pristine wilderness around large campfires.

Maintaining the Scout Tradition of Public Service

Troop 175 is also actively involved in the community and demonstrates that a "Scout is Helpful" on a regular basis. Our Scouts have done numerous projects for our sponsor St. Mary's including; setting up and helping to run the St. Mary's Carnival, building steps from the parking lot, building a new Christmas crèche for the Church and rehabilitating the rear entrance to the Church with a new fence and sign. Our scouts have also collected school supplies and delivered them, in person, to a community in an impoverished part of India, designed and placed new signs educating visitors about the history of Simsbury along Iron Horse Blvd, constructed birdhouses for Roaring Book Nature center, initiated a new "green" effort for the Town of Simsbury by building and placing recycling bins in eight public locations around town, collected hundreds of suits for a charity in Hartford, and performing important trail maintenance at the Onion Mountain Park. This last year, Carter Hill's Eagle Project collected 900 lbs of clothes and food. He and his dad personally delivered them to 5 orphanages in Tanzania while teaching leadership skills to the kids in the orphanage.

In 2008 we organized the Michael Bubnash Adventure Race where we raised (with the other 2 Simsbury Troops) over $25,000 for Michael's medical care, an Eagle Scout from another Simsbury Troop. Our Scouts put on their uniforms spread the word to local businesses and spoke from church pulpits all over town and collected the money in coins, cash, and checks. Some of our 3-man teams raised over $4,000 for a boy they had never met, but whom they knew was a fellow Scout. We believe strongly in "being part of something larger than one's self".

Helping Scouts Down the Path of Advancement – Our Record and Philosophy

Troop 175 has an enviable record of working with boys to help them achieve the skills and knowledge they need for advancement, including the ultimate rank in Boy Scouts, Eagle. In the history of our Troop, 70 boys have advanced to the rank of Eagle, including 29 in just the past five years. This high level of achievement is virtually unprecedented, and we are justifiably proud of these motivated achievers. This year, we anticipate having an additional 4 scouts earn this rank, the highest award in Scouting and one that we take seriously in terms of preparation. It's interesting to note that, in general, our Scouts earn this award at the age of 16 or 17, which is older than in many other Troops. While it is possible to receive your Eagle at a younger age, it is rare in our Troop because we believe that the Eagle badge means boys take the time not only to earn merit badges, but also to learn how to lead. We believe that there is no shortcut to learning leadership. It takes time and experience. Frankly, our older boys stay active because we provide the type of adventure that holds their interest. It is often said that no award or honor received prior to a boys eighteenth birthday is so revered in later life as the Eagle Scout Badge. Ask any Eagle Scout.

Leadership

We are proud of our adult leadership at Troop 175. It's deep and experienced. Our adult leaders have camped, climbed, fished, hunted and explored on many expeditions. They are all great teachers. In addition we have a very high participation by the Dads (and Moms) in our Troop and it is not unusual to have 15-20 dads/moms on a trip. No experience is necessary and if you were never a Scout as a boy this is your second chance to learn the ropes. We have a Parents/Leaders Patrol, the "Usual Suspects," on each trip and we eat very well (a source of some pride and a fair bit of competition) and share a lot of experiences as parents and as professionals from all walks of life.

Our Troop is boy led, and our leaders are selected by the adult leadership based on their performance and ability to lead. The senior patrol leaders and patrol leaders share their wisdom and pass on their knowledge to the younger Scouts through our trip and advancement programs. Boy Scouts is one of the very few organizations where boys can be put in leadership positions at ages as young as 12. Good leaders often appear early and the fun of scouting is watching them "take the lead". Troops are only as good as the boys who want to step up and take charge and the adult volunteers who are there to assist. Our 2010 – 2011 leaders are:

Attendance

The non-school life of most boys in Simsbury is sports. Many of our Scouts play competitive sports and indeed often captain their Varsity teams. We require a 50% meeting attendance and a 50% trip attendance in order to advance rank in our Troop. This allows boys to do both sports and Scouts.

Parent Involvement

Troop 175 is successful because of the volunteer work of dozens of parents. Our Troop Committee, chaired by Jamie Kalamarides, meets once a month and consists of 16 positions that are filled by individuals who spend many hours making sure we have the resources to run an organization of 110 Scouts. In addition, we have many Moms and Dads who take on one project a year or are regulars on our trips, where we need many drivers to move this Troop to the different trip venues. The reward is many new friendships and many nights around a campfire sharing stories, values and occasionally politics. We often have parents come on trips when their kids can't go. We welcome all assistance anytime, anywhere. Many of our Adult Leaders stay on even after their sons turn 18 and go off to college. We encourage this continuity and experience. For many of us Scouting is life long passion - not something that occurs just during our son's teenage years.

How to Join

If you're a Cub, we will be contacting you throughout the year as we have various events.

If you're not a Cub, are at least 11 years old or have completed 5th grade, then please go to our website.

If you are already a Scout and have just moved to the area, give the Scoutmaster a call. We would love to have you join us.

Troop Website

The Troop Website (www.simsburytroop175.org) packed full of information on our Troop policies, registration information, and programs. It also links to Troop Photo Albums with over 4,000 pictures of "Scouts in action".

Final Thoughts

We are very excited about what we do at Troop 175. The values expressed by the Scout Law and the Scout Oath are great compasses to teach and to live by. Coupled with the Scouting Skills and "friendships made for life" the Scouts is a well-defined path through a boy's "years of change." In 2007, as we were coming down Mt. Kilimanjaro, I asked one of our Scouts "When did you know you were going to make it to the Summit?" He looked at me and smiled and said "before I left my house Mr. Mead, before I left the house." The confidence, the spirit and the skills – it's what Scouting does. Its why Scouting Counts. Come be a part of it.

Yours in Scouting,
